A Western Romance

Of the days of '49

Length, 990 Feet.

COPYRIGHT 1908

The stage coach is held up by Indians, the occupants are relieved of their jewels and other belongings. The Indians have hardly ridden away when cowboys come to the scene and immediately start a hot pursuit after the Indians. The Indians drop their booty but capture one of the cowboys. An Indian maid falls in love with the young captive and liberates him. He is caught again, however, and bound upon a wild broncho which is then set free. The Indian maid rides after the broncho and lassos him giving for the second time the young American his freedom. The cowboy calls his companions for help. They overpower the Indians and force the Chief to give his consent to the marriage of the Indian maiden to the young American. The wedding is celebrated in true Indian style.

This Film is enacted by real Indians and real Cowboys and is to our knowledge the only Film in which real Indians play their part.

MANUFACTURER OF

S. Lubin
TRADE MARK REG.
COPYRIGHTED.

Life Motion Picture Machines, Films, Slides and Stereopticons.

Lubin Building, 926-928 Market St. Phila. Pa.

2500—6-08

No 79